Admission Information for International Students

Bachelor of Medicine Program in Medical Imaging (English Medium)

I. PROGRAM

Bachelor of Medicine in Medical Imaging.

Medical imaging is an important branch of clinical medicine, which is one of the fastest developing and most extensive disciplines in modern medical field, including sub-specialties such as diagnostic radiology (X ray,CT and MRI), interventional radiology, ultrasound imaging, nuclear medicine and imaging technology. The School of Medical Imaging has been authorized to grant doctorate in Imaging and Nuclear Medicine and was designated as College Specialty Construction Unit in Jiangsu Province in 2006. The Medical Imaging Experimental Demonstration Center of Jiangsu Province was built in 2009. The specialties of Medical Imaging and Medical Imaging Technology enroll 100 bachelor students per year at present.

The School of Medical Imaging has 23 affiliated hospitals and 50 teaching hospitals, which is the largest and most comprehen sive medical imaging teaching base in Jiangsu Province. There are 4 doctoral student advisors and 18 Master's student advisors inThe First Affiliated Hospital of Nanjing Medical University and 16 doctoral student advisors and 70 Master's student advisors in other affiliated hospitals, making up a strong teaching team. Over one hundred SCI papers and three hundred Chinese core journal papers were published during the recent three years. Our school undertook 18 national natural scientific foundation projects and 17 province level projects. In order to strengthen the level of clinical and scientific research, the First Affiliated Hospital possesses a variety of imaging equipment, including 7 sets of MR, 11 sets of CT and 16 sets of DR, etc.

From 2014 to 2019, the average employment rate of students majoring in medical imaging was almost 100%, which was much higherthan that of other majors. 88.5% of the employers in general hospitals think more highly of the graduates of our school than those of other medical colleges. All postgraduates from the Radiology Department of the First Affiliated Hospital of Nanjing Medical University received positions in tertiary hospitals in 2018. The average salary of radiologists in the United States has always been among the top clinical sub-specialties, and it's one of the first choices of residency for American medical students. In one word, the future of Medical Imaging is extremely bright.
